NOUVELLE-ZÉLANDE

La NOUVELLE-ZÉLANDE (268 676 km² - 3 000 000 d'hab. - cap. Wellington). Etat membre du Commonwealth, compte deux îles principales auxquelles il faut ajouter d'autres petites îles disséminées entre le tropique et l'antartique. L'île du Nord est célèbre pour ses sources thermales, ses geysers et ses volcans et dans celle du Sud on trouve les Alpes méridionales. Découvertes en 1642 par le navigateur hollandais Abel Tasman, les îles furent explorées par le capitaine britannique James Cook en 1769 et furent annexées par la suite à la Grande-Bretagne. Les Maoris qui représentent à peu près 7% de la population sont des descendants des colonisateurs à la peau brune du XIVe siècle. Les principales exportations sont la laine, la viande, les produits laitiers et leurs dérivés. Le revenu par habitant est élevé.
